

Eddystone is a successful growing emergency response and crisis management consultancy firm, with a diverse mix of clients from manufacturing to oil and gas. Due to growth, we are looking for experienced and enthusiastic associate consultants to join our delivery team.

The successful applicant must demonstrate:

- Relevant experience of actual emergency response or emergency management with knowledge of the roles of supporting agencies and response teams
- Solid vocational working experience and sound knowledge of emergency preparedness and response practices in both emergency response services environment but also the commercial sector
- Excellent verbal and written communicator with good facilitation and training skills
- The ability to work independently, solve problems and to find solutions
- An ability to cooperate and work as part of a team
- Project management knowledge / experience
- IT literacy
- Ability to work away from home for an periods of time
- Hold a full UK licence and own a car
- Availability for international travel (if required)
- Available for work immediately on a flexible basis following an Eddystone familiarisation period.

It would be beneficial / desirable for the successful applicant to have some of the following:

- Relevant qualifications and/or current/relevant experience in Crisis Management, HSE, Competent Authority (CA) or Regulatory bodies, COMAH/SEVESO etc
- Relevant level of business acumen
- Existing links in industry for further opportunity

At this time, Eddystone Consulting is inviting written applications with a current CV, stating current salary or expectation, to opportunities@eddistone.com
Additional information requests and any initial queries can also be directed to this address.